On May 17, 2001, at approximately 11 AM, 17-year-old Alissa Turney was last seen at Paradise Valley High School in Phoenix, AZ. It was the last day of her junior year. That morning, her stepfather, Michael Turney, signed her out of school early. He was the last known person to see her alive.

According to Michael, he and Alissa argued after returning home, and he claims he left her there alone around 1 PM. When he returned later that day, he said he found a note supposedly written by Alissa, stating she was running away to California. Michael later told police he received a call from Alissa a week later from a California payphone, a call that has never been verified and that no one else heard.

Alissa's personal belongings, including her phone, were left behind at home, and her bank account has remained untouched. She has never been seen or heard from again.
